

Abstract of the Disclosure:

In a personal account collecting system, when an user A utilizes a service for providing information managed by an information provider on an Internet 1 by getting access to the service through a mobile site 6 on the Internet 1, the user A 5 introduces an another user B as a pair person for utilizing the service through a human network. Information of an account of another user is thereby collected on a database of the service site for providing information.